Your Attention to Safety Matters!!

We are going to take a moment and brag on a technician that shall remain nameless.

We had a call recently and the tech need a little input as to what to do. He seemed a bit uneasy with work on a particular structure due to some “give” that sent up some red flags.

He had spoken with tower owners and the response was...minimal, I think would be the appropriate word.

With concern, coupled with a little pushing, and a little tenacity, the tower owner’s response changed, and any possible issues were averted.

He already knew what to do, he didn’t need us to TELL him what to do, he just needed a bit of confirmation.

We tell you this to remind you that YOU are on the frontline, YOU are the ones that KNOW these towers, and YOU KNOW when something doesn’t feel right. His concern lie not only for his own safety, but had he passed the job to another vendor, and something happened, he wouldn’t have been able to reconcile that decision. Remember, your decisions have ripple effects and may affect more than just you or your crew.

When you see something amiss, say something, get it documented, and push; this is your house, these are your brothers and sisters. Don’t fail them, or yourself!
